Community Cook Books are an important part of the Anglican Church in Aotearoa New Zealand and Polynesia, for they have been used to raise funds for every conceivable type of building, items of furniture as well as day to day running expenses. These cook books have often been purchased by the same people who produced them, or by their neighbours, and they have been given as gifts to relatives throughout the world.

Many of these cook books are now butter-splattered, dog-eared and coverless, but they tell us much about our culinary traditions and our developing national cuisines. Many of them will never find their way into libraries so the purpose of creating this Bibliography is to seek out those items which are still on the bookshelves of cooks and to create a comprehensive listing of cook books associated with the Anglican Church in Aotearoa New Zealand and Polynesia.

The Bibliography will include cook books produced by parishes, parochial districts, mission districts, co-operating ventures, orphanages, rest homes, schools, dioceses and whatever other sources or causes which are found. It is presently biased towards the South Island of New Zealand where most of the collecting has been undertaken to date, so it is important that our knowledge of the existence of these cook books becomes more widespread.

This Bibliography has been developed from two private collections as well as the very small collection held in the Christchurch Anglican Diocesan Archives. It does not include cook books which are held in New Zealand and overseas libraries. In time the information from these more public sources will be added to the Bibliography.

The impetus for this Bibliography came from the Marsden funded project “The Development of New Zealand’s Culinary Traditions” based at the Anthropology Department of the University of Otago.

The bibliography was compiled by F Jane Teal, and is a work in progress F Jane Teal © 2008

The Bibliography is ordered in the following way

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Diocese</th>
<th>Listed in alphabetical order.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Location within the Diocese</td>
<td>Listed in alphabetical order based on the information provided in the cook book. Sometimes this location is the name of a parish, sometimes the location is within a parish. Cross references have been provided and also when parishes are known by more than one name.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Schools  Listed in alphabetical order

Other Institutions  Listed in alphabetical order

The information which is recorded about each cook book is in the following order
Author/editor/compiler(s)
Date
Title and any variant titles
Name of the group in the parish which produced the cookbook, as appropriate
Edition
Publisher
Description including cover, binding and pagination, contents and index pages

Where any information has been surmised, but not proved it is included within square brackets [   ].

If you have a cook book, or an edition of a cook book which is not on the Bibliography, then please contact archives@chch.ang.org.nz with the following information:

author/editor/compiler(s)  many will be anonymous

date and/or edition  many will be undated – if there is a clue about the reason for the cook book, this should be included as it can be followed up and may result in a date being allocated title and any variant titles  many cook books have a number of titles – it is important to include them all, and indicate where they are found eg on the cover, on the first page

the name of the group in the parish which produced the cook book  this information may be already available as the author or compilers, but additional information which will aid identification should be added publisher  many cook books do not include a publisher; if there is one it might be on the back cover, on the bottom of the last page, and sometimes on the bottom of the title page description  cover – is it soft or hard?

binding – is it stapled, spiral bound or glued?

number of pages – many cook books have very odd pagination, but include all that is available, including Roman and Arabic numerals, and whether or not these numbers include an index or contents page?

Additions will be made to the Bibliography from time to time.
